(2) CHINA-USSR: Progress Reported in Talks

China appears satisfied with the outcome of the first round of talks with the USSR and is prepared to continue the dialogue for an extended period.

Comment: The reports suggest the two sides have established a firm basis for more talks. Deng's comments make it clear China is willing to address--and respond to--areas of difference individually, rather than to push for action on all of its demands at once. The Chinese also are signaling their willingness to conclude some functional agreements with the USSR along the way.
